The National Institute of Urban Affairs has been hosting its own website since 2000 (www.niua.org). Information on the website is updated as and when required.

The website provides information about the Institute and its various activities and research, under the following broad heads:

About:

National Institute of Urban Affairs (NIUA) is a premier institute for research, capacity building and dissemination of knowledge for the urban sector in India. The vision and mission is aligned with the overall objectives of the institution that is governed by a Governing Council.

Research:

The institute's research supports projects that are based on seven core thematic areas: Urbanization, Urban Infrastructure & Economic Growth, Municipal Finance & Governance, Land Economics & Transportation, Urban Poverty, Affordable Housing, Sustainable Habitat, Environment & Climate Change and Smart Cities.

Publication:

NIUA documents and disseminates good practices and harnesses the resources of national, regional and global networks to deliver best quality capacity development. It regularly publishes reports, occasional research papers and research studies based on the outcomes of research activities, training sessions, conferences, seminars, workshops and lectures.

The institute publishes a prominent biannual journal, Urban India. It has also published the biannual journal Environment & Urbanization, South Asia and a monthly publication titled Urban News, a compilation of news related to the urban sector culled from leading dailies and magazines.

Outreach:

NIUA hosts regular activities for policy advocacy, knowledge sharing and collaborative research. Workshops, Seminars, Trainings, Conferences, lectures and Round table discussions bring together research and expertise of urban practitioners, thought leaders, professors, architects, planners, environmentalists to examine and discuss the complexities and issues faced by cities to make accessible cutting edge knowledge and research findings.

Library:

The vast knowledge of books that NIUA stores in the form of a library is shared this section where a print catalogue and digital archive is presented.
